

Print the main handout on cardstock. Students can color the handout, and each should be given an eye that is already cut out. They should carefully color the skin around the eye. A paperclip should be scotch-taped onto the back of the cardstock where the healed eye will go. Then these healed eyes also will have a magnet on the back. The students will be able to use the craft to tell others that Jesus gave the blind man new eyes to see. They also should know and say that the man learned to see that Jesus is the Son of God.
